MEASURE PASSES

McKenzie Bill Now Goes to Senate—Action Was First Move Since Bid
Was Made.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, March 10.—The house today passed the McKenzie bill providing for acceptance of Henry Ford's offer for Muscle Shoals, 228 to 142.

Efforts to make drastic changes in the measure failed, and it goes to the senate practically as reported by the house military committee.

Mr. Ford had informed the committee he would accept the terms of the McKenzie bill.

First Action in Congress.

The vote was the first action by either the house or senate on the Detroit man's bid for the government's nitrate power and nitrate projects on the Tennessee river which has been pending for more than two years.

The bill directs the secretary of war to sell nitrate plants numbers 1 and 2 and Waco Quarry to Ford and to lease dams two and three, including power stations to him for 100 years.

Provision is made for construction of a power plant to replace the Gorgas plant, recently sold to the Alabama Power company. It would be included in the properties sold to Ford.

Recapture Clause Out.

Just before the final vote opponents of the bill failed in an effort to put through an amendment to place Ford under the federal water power act and to limit his lease to 40 years.

Just prior to that roll calls were obtained on two amendments. The Madden amendment providing for replacement of the Gorgas steam plant was retained in the bill while the Beggs amendment which would have enabled the government to recover its properties at Muscle Shoals in the event Ford violated his contract in any manner was eliminated.

TENNESSEE VALLEY
STAGES CELEBRATION.

Birmingham, Ala., March 10.—Citizens of the Tennessee valley reported their greatest celebration since the ratification on receipt of news that the McKenzie bill providing for the leasing of Muscle Shoals to Henry Ford, At Sheffield, Florence, Decatur and Huntsville, and other points citizens gathered on the court house lawns or other central places.

Banners, ringing of bells and blowing of automobile horns signified the elation over passage of the bill.

Remembering Ford's promise to build an industrial city several miles long, citizens expect a boom provided he is finally given the right to develop the shoals property.

Louisville, Ga., March 10.—(Special.)—Nora, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jones Shephard, who lives 10 miles north of here, died last night from burns received when her clothing became ignited from a fire in the yard on Saturday morning.

This wise woman does in the early morning. She answers the questions of her home through the advertising columns of The Constitution.

RECLUSE FIGHTS
DECREE DECLARING
HIM TO BE DEAD

Newark, N. J., March 10.—Isaac C. Crane, 77, of Belleville, who was decreed legally dead by Surrogate Howard Isherwood last Mar., has begun court proceedings to prove that he still is alive. Crane was declared legally dead after his wife had testified that she had not seen him for more than 20 years.

Although Crane's home is within a few miles of the surrogate's court, he did not hear of the action taken until several weeks ago. He has obtained an order directing his wife to show cause on March 19 why the order declaring him dead should not be rescinded.

SPRING ROUTED
BY ICY BLASTS
OF KING WINTER

Peach and Cotton Crops
Will Not Be Hurt—Early
Blooming Flowers to Suffer.

Old King Winter—believed on his way to retirement for 1924—rode back into Atlanta Monday on the winds of an icy gale, and through C. F. Von Herrmann, local forecaster, announced his intention of remaining in the city through Tuesday—at least, Wednesday a moderation in the temperature is predicted.

Early blooming flowers, small buds and tender plants and shrubs will suffer most from the present cold, it was pointed out. Where care was exercised in covering these flowers and plants, however, they will be spared, as the cold is not expected to penetrate even a light covering.

Fruit Not Hurt.

The cold spell, while it may slightly retard, will not appreciably affect the fruit crop of Georgia, it was stated Monday night by James G. Carlisle, secretary of the Georgia Peach growers' exchange. That assertion is based on the fact that in spite of the extremely cold spell of last March, Georgia produced an 8,800-car crop of peaches, which is slightly above the average, and unless the present wave is of long duration and the weather becomes colder, as large a crop is expected this year. The peach crop is the only fruit crop which might be endangered.

While a few of the earliest varieties of peach trees already have started to bloom, the commonest variety is at present just about ready to bloom, and so will not be materially affected. The high wind accompanying the cold wave also tended to prevent injury to the trees, Mr. Carlisle said, because it tends to dry the moisture in the buds, making them far less liable to freeze.

J. J. Brown, commissioner of agriculture, stated that damage to all crops in the state will be small. Practically no cotton has been planted, and fruit, with the possible retarding of the peach crop, will not be affected. Unless the weather grows considerably colder, the tobacco beds in south Georgia are also safe. While early blooming flowers and shrubs may be slightly damaged, he added, they are in little danger if properly covered.

29-Degree Mark.

According to the government thermometer, the coldest weather recorded in Atlanta was at 7 o'clock Monday night, when the mercury slipped down to the 29 mark, with no relief in sight. It was predicted that the thermometer would read about 28 degrees.

SPECIAL COUNSEL
STARTS FOR WEST
TO FILE OIL SUIT

Fight for Recovery of Teapot Dome Begins
This Week in Wyoming
Federal Court.

SINCLAIR, DOHENY
WILL FIGHT CASES

Investigating Committee
Gets Back on Trail of Telegrams and Scandal
Today.

Washington, March 10.—Special government counsel in the oil lease cases left today for Wyoming and California to initiate this week the long court fight looking to the recovery of the naval fuel reserves in those states from the Sinclair and Doheny interests.

Meantime, the oil committee will resume its public hearings tomorrow under plans calling for an inquiry into several new phases of the question after it has wound up its investigation into the affairs of Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher, as they relate to the oil matter.

Receivers to take charge of both Teapot Dome in Wyoming and naval reserve No. 1 in California pending the outcome of the annulment suits will be asked of the federal district courts in the two states. In addition the court at Cheyenne will be requested to issue a temporary injunction to prevent further extraction of oil in the Wyoming reserve, where the wells already have been shut down.

Restrain Drilling.

No injunction to prevent production in the California reserve will be sought, but the court will be asked to restrain the Pan-American Petroleum company from drilling any new wells. Also it will be requested to impound the royalty oil revenue from this reserve during the litigation.

Government counsel explained it was not possible to stop "gusher" wells from producing and that some

HAMON'S DAUGHTER TO DEFEND FATHER

Chicago, March 10.—Olive Belle Hamon, 16-year-old daughter of the late "Jake" Hamon, wealthy oil man and republican leader, ran away to Washington today in an attempt to persuade the United States senate to allow her to enter a denial to charges that her father had attempted to arrange a corrupt political deal with Major General Leonard Wood.

The girl boarded a train bound for the east with no baggage except a violin which she said her father had given her. She left a note explaining her action to her mother.

"Mother dear," the note read, "I've gone to tell the senate about Daddy. I think he'd like me to. Don't worry. I'll be a good girl. Olive Belle."

DENBY QUILTS POST
AS HEAD OF NAVY
TO MUSIC STRAIN

Former Official To Go
Home to Detroit Wednesday—Will Announce
Future Plans There.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, March 10.—Edwin Denby surrendered his navy portfolio today, but retained a connection with the naval establishment, of which he has been the chief for three years. When he left the secretary's office late in the day, he was again Major Denby, fourth class, marine corps reserve, with a renewed pledge of loyalty to the flag on his lips.

"You see they cannot force me entirely out of the navy," he said smilingly. "I am still on the payroll. I draw $1 a month."

Departmental affairs were turned over to Acting Secretary Roosevelt until such time as Mr. Denby's successor is nominated and confirmed. There was nothing to indicate that President Coolidge had as yet determined definitely upon a man for the post.

Had Big Farewell.

The former secretary will leave for his home in Detroit Wednesday afternoon, returning to Washington about March 20. A homecoming reception awaits him as evidence of the confidence of his fellow townsmen. Detroit will be put to it, however, to make that homecoming more striking than was the farewell extended to him today by commissioned and civilian personnel of the navy department.

Mr. Denby began his last day in office with flags draped about the big room, his desk laden with flowers wishing him bon voyage on behalf of "comrades of the navy and marine corps on duty in Washington" and with high officers of the department gathered to witness the recommissioning in the marine corps reserve. He held the rank of major when selected by President Harding to fill the cabinet post.

Repeatedly beside his desk Mr. Denby repeated in solemn tones the oath administered by Major General Lejune, commandant of the marine corps and

AROUSING PUBLIC

Much Study Required in

Teapot Domes.

BY THOMAS L. STOKES.

Washington, March 10.—Concrete steps to remove once and for all the possibility of another Teapot Dome scandal are being considered by members of the senate who have been close to developments in the long drawn out investigation, as the end finally begins to come in sight.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, chief investigator, said Monday that he hoped to complete the investigation within two more weeks, though he admitted that any new turn of developments or any hitch in the program he has outlined might prolong it beyond that time.

Walsh said he had been considering restrictive legislation which would prevent a recurrence of the methods of leasing government oil lands to private interests, and that the committee would shape some definite remedies which will be included in its detailed report of the investigation to be made when the probe is completed.

Project Requires Study.

There has been pressure from the country to choke off some of the extraneous scandal matter which is being disclosed, and to frame legislation which will stop the actual evils which have been revealed in the investigation. This is regarded as the committee to complete its work and make recommendations to congress.

Walsh, as yet, has not come to any decision on just what legislative steps can be taken. There are questions

MONTICELLO GOES TO LEVY'S SISTER
UNDER HIS WILL

New York, March 10.—"Monticello," once the home in Albemarle county, Virginia, of Thomas Jefferson, to which title lately was acquired by the Thomas Jefferson memorial foundation, is bequeathed by the will of the late Jefferson M. Levy, filed today, to his sister, Amelia L. Mayhew, of New York, to whom all of Mr. Levy's other property also will go. The will was dated September 28, 1923.

Stuart G. Gibbons, president of the Jefferson Memorial foundation, declared last week that the foundation had acquired title to "Monticello" by an initial payment of $100,000 on the purchase price of $500,000. He said Mr. Levy's death would not interfere with the plans to make the other installment payments and to raise $1,000,000 to support "Monticello" as a permanent Jeffersonian memorial.

M'ADOO SPEAKS

Candidate Will Open
Campaign in Georgia in Marietta at Noon and Atlanta at Night.

BY MARK SULLIVAN.

Washington, March 10.—We have now reached the beginning of the presidential primaries.

The unusual fact this year is that democratic primaries and ones in southern states are more decisive and important than the early ones in northern states.

The first of these southern democratic primaries is in Alabama on Tuesday, March 11. Alabama is Senator Underwood's home state. If by any chance Underwood should fail to carry the primaries of his home state, it would be at least a serious handicap, and possibly a fatal one.

Apparently the Underwood organization realizes this; and while they have plans all ready to go forward on a large scale throughout the country, they have refrained from putting these plans into effect until after they see Tuesday's results in Alabama.

Unusual Situation.

Ordinarily it is most unusual for a man to be opposed in his own state and by his own people. But in the case of Alabama and Underwood, several circumstances have combined to bring about this unusual kind of opposition.

Some months ago, Senator Underwood's friends in the Alabama legislature passed an act designed to make it difficult for any candidate from outside the state to make a fight for the state's delegates. The most extraordinary feature of this statute was a provision that if a native of Alabama should win the primary he would have the right to name the delegates to the national convention by his personal dictate. Apparently, some persons in Alabama felt that this was rather over-zealous on the part of Underwood's friends. At that time it

M'ADOO HAS STARTED
JOURNEY TO GEORGIA

Los Angeles, March 10.—To win Georgia democrats to his support, William G. McAdoo, democratic presidential aspirant, left Monday to make a personal campaign in the state before the primaries there March 19.

McAdoo said he enters "with joy into the fight to bring the government back to honesty, to secure universal disarmament and world peace, to solve the farm problem, to secure cheaper and more efficient railroad transportation, to restore the genuine democracy of credit which prevailed under the Wilson administration, to administer the government in the interest of all the people, and to drive special privilege out of power everywhere."

Senator Reed, of Missouri, was rebuked for his "indefensible campaign of calumny and personalities directed at me," by his defeat Saturday, McAdoo said.

McAdoo charged Wall Street is "trying to nominate both the republican and democratic candidates," but declared "it will never be permitted to dominate the democratic national convention."

William G. McAdoo, candidate for the democratic presidential nomination, will open his campaign for support of the Georgia delegation, with two addresses Friday, the first at noon at Marietta, his birth place, and the second at the Atlanta Auditorium at night.

Use of the auditorium also had been sought for that night by Underwood headquarters for an address to be delivered in behalf of the Alabama candidate by Senator Thomas Heflin. The auditorium had been engaged for that night, however, and it was not until this engagement had been cancelled that the council committee, in charge of the building, placed it at the disposal of the McAdoo forces.

No announcement has been made as to the time or place of the Heflin

MEXICAN BANDIT

Former Land Agent for

Details of Attempt To

MINING INTERESTS
BEHIND IT, CLAIM

Letter to Outlaw Said To
Have Offered $50,000
Annually for Protection to Miners.

BY UNITED NEWS.

El Paso, Texas, March 10.—Charles F. Hunt, of El Paso, former land agent for the Terrazas estate in Mexico, declared Monday that A. B. Fall induced him to write a letter to the late Francisco Villa, in January, 1917, in which Hunt states, Villa was asked to meet Fall and other mining men on the border to discuss American support of a proposed Villa revolt, according to the El Paso Post.

Hunt said that Fall denied authorization of the letter and consequently the (Hunt) suffered from Mexican resentment, when a copy fell into the hands of the Mexican government.

The letter was published in New York some time ago and Fall, at that time, denied that Hunt had been authorized by him to send it.

The letter proposed American aid behind a stable Mexican government to be headed by Villa, for which, Hunt declares, "Eleven mining companies wanted Villa to assure protection of their mining properties. Fall told me."

"They were willing to pay Villa a big sum, around $50,000 a year," Hunt continued. "Fall hated Carranza and trusted Villa's word, though he called him a bandit."

Villa was suspicious of the proposed arrangement, Hunt declares, and while Villa answered the communication, "he was afraid that it was a plot to kidnap him," and refused to name a place of meeting.

Hunt said that he sent three copies of the letter through various agencies to Villa, only one of which reached him. One reached the hands of Carranza.

Hunt says that he was formerly associated with Fall in the sale of a large tract of Mexican land.

Judge Barrett notified the jury Saturday afternoon that they need not give the case consideration Sunday.

1 DIES, 2 INJURED WHEN AUTO RUNS OFF EMBANKMENT

Claxton, Ga., March 10.—Harold Deloach was killed and his two companions, Driggers and Durrance, were badly bruised when an automobile in which they were riding turned over an embankment here last night.

Deloach was driving the car. They were returning from the home of a young lady a few miles from here, and reached the Shellwood embankment when the car, being too near the edge of the road, turned over. Deloach was instantly killed. His body was taken to the home of his father, L. W. Deloach, a well known planter in this vicinity.

FIREMAN IS DEAD OF SCALD BURNS IN TRAIN CRASH

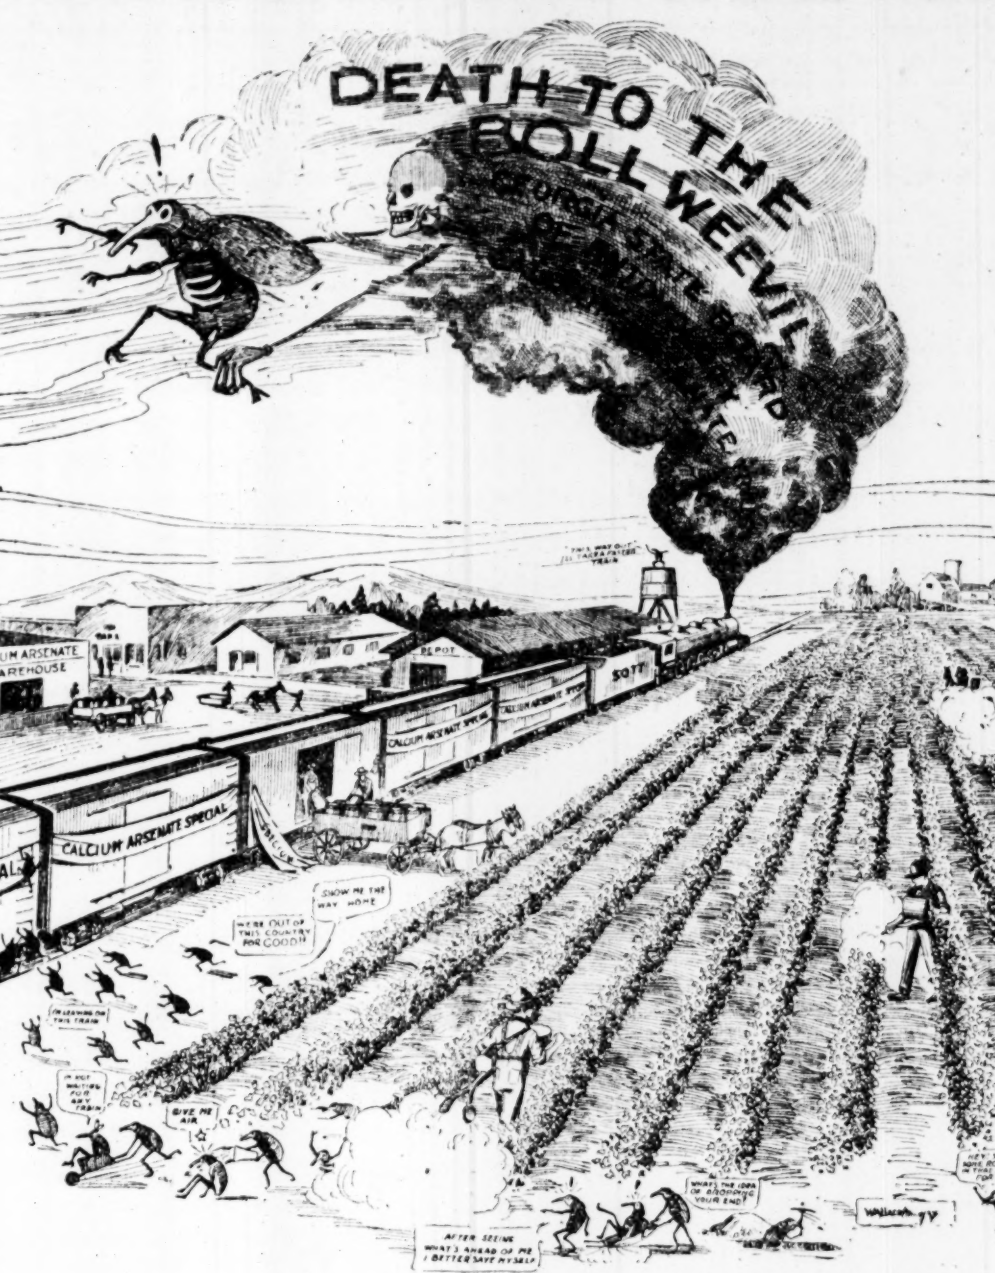

Constitution Bureau, Masonic Temple Annex, Phone 1069.
Rome, Ga., March 10.—(Special.)—Claude M. Stone, 35, and for six years a fireman on the Southern road, died here last night from scalds received Saturday when several freight cars escaped and bumped into an engine which he was firing, knocking the steam injector off the side and trapping the man in the cab.
Engineer Claude Burdett jumped from the cab window, breaking his collar bone and receiving several other painful but not serious injuries.
Stone was a well-known Roman and is survived by his widow and two children, Floyd, 14, and Dale, 11. Funeral services will be held at the First Methodist church tomorrow and Rev. Rembert Smith of the First Methodist church of Rome, and Rev. Pim, pastor of the First Methodist church of Rockmart, will officiate. Interment will be held at Myrtle Hill cemetery.

FORSYTH VOTES BONDS TO PAVE CITY STREETS

Forsyth, Ga., March 10.—(Special.)—The election for $75,000 street paving bonds resulted in a victory for the bonds here today, the vote being 372 for bonds and 79 against. Bonds favoring paving were voted three years ago, but were rejected by the anti-bond faction, who won a victory in the higher courts on account of a technicality with the registration list, officials say.
The school question was injected into the present campaign by those who thought the schools should have first consideration, the proposition being proposed to establish a city system of schools and float bonds for this purpose.
Those in favor of paving bonds took the position that the bonds for paving should not be confused with the school issue, as it might be possible in some way to secure both. Nature seemed to be with the paving crowd, as the streets were about as muddy and slushy as they could possibly be today.

Ice-Pick Slayer To Plead Insanity At Case Opening

Decatur, Ga., March 10.—(Special.)—Rufus Bird, charged with the slaying of his wife with an ice pick at the home of his daughter in Decatur Christmas eve, will enter a plea of insanity when he goes on trial for his life Tuesday morning in the DeKalb superior court, according to announcement Monday night by Hugh Burgess, counsel for the defense.
The case was set for today, but other court business prevented.
John M. Slaton, Hugh Burgess and Leon S. Tomlinson were appointed to represent Bird by Judge Hutcherson, before whom the case will be tried. Half a dozen witnesses have been subpoenaed to appear in court today in the interest of the defense.
Dorrie Bird, the 14-year-old daughter of the accused man, is the only eye-witness to the killing. The girl was in her sister's home at 234 Drexel avenue, Decatur, at the time, and was herself wounded by the ice pick with which the killing was committed.
According to the story of the girl her father entered the kitchen of the Drexel avenue home where his wife was holding a two-year-old child in her arms. Bird, she alleges, asked to hold the baby. As the baby was handed toward him, the mother was stabbed without provocation, she says.

War on Rum Traffic

Eatonton, Ga., March 10.—(Special.)—Dr. F. A. Clark has been made chairman of a citizens liquor law enforcement committee of Putnam county following a meeting of outraged citizens of Eatonton. The meeting was called by local ministers after a recent outbreak of lawlessness, in which two persons were killed had swept over the community.
Dr. Clark, with the aid of Rev. T. E. B. Everett, of the Methodist church, and Rev. T. S. Sheffield, of the Baptist church, plans to have similar committees organized by the law-abiding citizens of adjoining counties, including Hancock, Green and Morgan counties.
The immediate cause of the outbreak against liquor traffic in Putnam county is a recent shooting affair in which Bob Heath and O. C. Harwood were killed.

Shipwreck Story Of Smith Reads As Crusoe Tale

Albany, Ga., March 10.—(Special.)—Shipwrecked on a small island about 125 miles northeast of San Domingo, where he and his two white companions, Frank Rittenhouse and Charles M. Allen, of Baltimore, and two negroes remained for eight weeks, and were finally picked up by a small vessel seeking dried fish of the natives, a story involving that of Robinson Crusoe and the Grecian Ulysses, was told by William E. Smith, ordinary of Dougherty county, missing since October 6, who returned home here today.

Telegrams were received last Wednesday by members of the family from Smith at Tampa. He asked that money for his transportation be forwarded to him there and stated that he would be at home Saturday. When he failed to arrive an investigation was begun to ascertain if the messages were genuine.

Details of the long trip were given out by the official.

"My companions and I sailed from Miami, Fla., November 24, with Buenos Aires as a destination, and our 65-foot power boat belonging to Mr. Rittenhouse was wrecked December 15. We were lucky to escape with our lives," he declared.

There were but two or three native families on the island, and they lived principally on fish. Finally a small steamer visited the island to buy dried fish from the natives. They took us to Santo Domingo. After some time spent there, we caught a sailing vessel for Tampa, where we arrived last Wednesday, hardly recognizable on account of the several months' growth of beard on our faces."

Communication was established with their families.
Mrs. Smith, wife of the ordinary, has announced as candidate for his office and the entries have closed for the democratic primary to be held March 19. Mrs. Smith has three opponents in the race.

You Lose Much

If you don't fight film on teeth
Coated teeth are dingy

Do you admire the whiter teeth seen everywhere today? Don't you think they add to beauty and to charm?

Then learn how people get them. Millions now combat the film in a delightful way. Make this test and note the changes which it brings to you.

The chief enemy of teeth

Film is the teeth's great enemy—that viscous film you feel. No ordinary tooth paste effectively combats it. Much of it clings and stays.

Soon the film discolors, forming dingy coats. Then teeth remain unsightly and unclean.
Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Very few people escaped such troubles in the old ways of teeth cleaning.

Protect the Enamel
Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.
The test will be a revelation. Cut out coupon now.

"Jus' Lika Da Store"

Tony came to Atlanta from a country where there are only two classes—upper and lower.

To the (so called) lower class any such institution as a bank, at home, would call up a mental picture of stiff, arrogant, officious employees and an atmosphere of cold reserve—decidedly humbling to a sunny-minded peasant.

Small wonder, then, that when Tony's natural thrift led him to deposit his first-earned money with "The Friendly Bank" and he quickly sensed its democratic interest in him, his Latin eyes lighted as he exclaimed: "Deesa Bank for Me, She's Maka De Fren' Jus' Lika Da Store."

It's because we are neither too big nor too busy for unhurried personal attention to our customers that folks whose little account means the world and all to them like to bank with us. We invite beginners; the latch string is always out to every commercial, savings depositor who needs our advice on any matter pertaining to his financial welfare.

Our executives are easy to meet; come in and learn about our friendly service. "She's Maka Da Fren' Jus' Lika Da Store."

KING OF BULGARIA WOULD AVOID WAR

Sofia, Bulgaria, March 10.—King Boris is concerned greatly over the stirring situation in the Balkans. He relations between Bulgaria and the Slavians are badly strained, the trouble between the two countries being of long standing, but accentuated recently by border clashes.

The Bulgarian government is endeavoring to suppress the Macedonian insurgents, who have been causing a serious situation in the Balkans. The Slavians state, much trouble by the Bulgarians.

King Boris discussed today with the associated Press correspondent the present situation, making a strong plea for harmony.

"I hope from the bottom of my heart," said the king, "that no new developments will arise to endanger the peace of the Balkans, for disturbance in the Balkans cannot fail to disturb the rest of the world and the peace of Europe."

Why? Pimple-Poison goes when Red-Blood-Cells increase! S. S. S. builds these Red-Blood-Cells! You can be sure of this, nature has no substitute for red-blood-cells. Pimple-poison can't live in the red rivers of your blood as long as there is S. S. S. in it.

Every woman, every man, can now have a face clear as a Rose-Petal! No more red-heads! No more red-bloody pimples! That is what you need when you see pimples staring at you in the mirror. Lackhead pimples are worse! Pimples are worse yet! You can try anything under the sun, you'll find only one answer, more red-blood in your blood! The tremendous results, produced by an increase in red-blood-cells is one of the A. B. C's of medical science. Red-cells mean clear, pure, rich blood. They mean clear, ruddy, low complexion. They mean nerve power, because all your nerves are fed by your blood. They mean freedom from pimples, from the lackhead pest, from boils, from eczema and skin eruptions, from neurotic impurities, from that red, exhausted, run-down feeling. Red-blood-cells are the most important thing in the world to each of us. S. S. S. will build them for you. S. S. S. has been known since 1826, as one of the greatest blood-builders. OPPIUM CONGRESS TO MEET IN PARIS

Geneva, March 10.—The opium congress, which adjourned tonight to meet in Paris March 28, has brought out the tremendous difficulties in the way of reaching an international agreement which will meet American ideas and really limit the production of opium and its derivatives to medical and scientific needs.

Reflecting the views of India, the British delegate suggested to the congress that opium became a world menace when exported, and that the legitimate internal needs of a country like India, where opium is eaten, should not be subject to an international convention. This, it is considered, strikes a blow at the American view point, which favors actual limitation of production.

Want American Faith.

"We beg the world to believe us and make it possible for us to attain our purpose, which is not in conflict with the interest of any state in the Balkans or the world."

I hope especially that America will understand us. The world desires peace. The Balkans cannot fail to be the handiwork of America.

It is my sincere hope that during the period of readjustment our efforts to promote peace in the Balkans at almost any cost to ourselves will be appreciated by America, so nobly generous both intellectually and materially.

EXPERTS DEBATE FORM OF COMPILING REPORT

Paris, March 10.—Getting down to the last stage of their work, the reparations experts today began studying the form in which their report would be presented to the reparations commission. Their labors on the rough draft text will continue through the week, the experts hoping, and making an earnest effort to be able to go over it with the committee headed by Reginald McKenna in the early part of next week.

The greater confidence prevails among the experts that the report as thoroughly outlined in the decisions up to this time, will be unanimous and they have received information to confirm the fact that it will be accepted by all the allies. The underlying principles of their findings are that Germany must pay the greatest amount she can and that there must be a minimum interference with her economic and financial affairs so long as she executes the final terms of settlement.

The experts will recommend that the minimum annual payments be fixed on a progressive scale to be paid, firstly, from receipts of railroads and monopolies, any deficiency to be met from taxation. The theory underlying this decision is that the German people must be taxed as much as the people of any allied country, and their paying capacity judged by the sums derived from such taxation.

When the receipts from pledges, railroads and monopolies exceed the minimum payments, the surplus will be turned into the German treasury. The committee has endeavored to set up as flexible a plan as possible, giving satisfaction to the allies in that it provides immediate payments with provision for the increase of such payments according to Germany's prosperity and greater paying capacity.

It will, at the same time, relieve Germany of unpleasant foreign control of her chief industries and make it possible for her, if she sets to work earnestly to carry out her obligations, to avoid any interference with her affairs again. The plan will enable her to pay all reparations in her own money, which, deposited in her new gold bank of issue, will be subject to check by creditors. The sums can be turned over in cash or be used for the payment of merchandise bought in Germany.

MRS. HELEN PLANE, HEROINE OF SOUTH, AGED 95 MONDAY

Mrs. Helen Plane, who on January 19 drew aside the American flag in unveiling the head of General Robert E. Lee on Stone Mountain, celebrated her ninety-fifth birthday Monday. However, the celebration was a quiet one, as Mrs. Plane passed the day in bed at the home of her son, W. F. Plane, 34 Park Lane, where she is slowly recovering from the slight illness that has weakened her strength.

It was Mrs. Plane who first suggested the idea of a huge Confederate memorial on Stone Mountain. She is founder of the Georgia division and the Atlanta chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, and is an honorary president of the national organization. If Mrs. Plane's health permits, it is understood that the Atlanta chapter, U. D. C., will hold a reception in honor of her birthday later this week.

Mrs. Plane is the widow of a Confederate captain killed at Antietam in 1862. She has been a resident of Atlanta since 1874.

was unwilling to do so until convinced of the guilt of the accused.

"Under the reply of the attorney general," said the committee report, "there is but one of two courses open to the house of representatives: First, the house take full charge of the investigation and evidence of the alleged charges and relieve the department of justice from further responsibility; second, allow the department of justice to continue the investigation now being made."

Opinions Differ

"While the difference of opinion among the membership of the committee as to the correctness of the position of the attorney general that the ends of justice would be imperiled by giving the house the names of the members of the house and the charges against them as requested by the house; and while it is a high duty which the house owes to itself and to the country at large to purge itself at the earliest possible moment of all those, if any there be, unworthy to sit in that body, the committee is unwilling to recommend to the house that it permit itself to be placed in the position of being responsible for the suspension of proceedings by the attorney general in connection with this matter."

In his communication to Speaker Gillett, Mr. Daugherty said he was willing to transmit all evidence in the possession of the department to the house, so that a committee might conduct an investigation. If this were done, however, he told the house, the department would exceed its investigation in order to give the house a free hand.

OPPIUM CONGRESS TO MEET IN PARIS

Geneva, March 10.—The opium congress, which adjourned tonight to meet in Paris March 28, has brought out the tremendous difficulties in the way of reaching an international agreement which will meet American ideas and really limit the production of opium and its derivatives to medical and scientific needs.

Reflecting the views of India, the British delegate suggested to the congress that opium became a world menace when exported, and that the legitimate internal needs of a country like India, where opium is eaten, should not be subject to an international convention. This, it is considered, strikes a blow at the American view point, which favors actual limitation of production.

Fear Other Objections.

It is also feared that other producing countries, like Persia and Turkey, will use similar arguments and leave the road open to continued smuggling of large quantities of opium.

The British representative contended that evil could best be combated by strictly limiting the manufacture of derivative drugs, such as morphine and that each country should be permitted to manufacture in proportion to its present output.

The Dutch delegate submitted a proposal interesting to South America, because the coca leaf, from which cocaine is derived, is grown in Bolivia and Peru as well as in Java. He insisted it would be better to limit production of the coca plant than to seek to control the manufacture of cocaine, as in limiting the production the source of the trouble would be reached.

Hope To Settle Problem.

During the exchange of views in Paris the delegates hope to prepare a set of guiding principles which will be the basis of a future convention.

Two Americans, Norman H. Davis and Edwin L. Neville, of the state department at Washington, and Dr. Soren Dantas of Brazil, were the dominating figures in today's league of nations proceedings. Undismayed by the continued objections of the Poles to his convention which disposes of Menel controversy, a political problem which has annoyed Europe for years, Mr. Davis went straight ahead with his plans to present his solution to the council of the league of nations, which began its session today and which is expected to consider the Menel affair on Wednesday. Mr. Neville continued his presentation of the American views on opium and the narcotic drug evil before the opium congress.

COLLEGE STUDENT EXPRESSES SPIRIT OF PRESENT AGE

Easton, March 10.—At last the longed-for American college student, target of folks who view with alarm an age of gin and jazz, has found a vigorous defender.

CONGRESS CHIEFS PRESS FOR SPEED

has spent hardly an hour a day on this question—some times much less than that. So it is difficult for administration leaders to use the oil scandal as an excuse for the delay in shoving through important legislation.

Two Fund Bills Passed.

Of the dozen appropriation bills which carry the funds to meet government expenses for the fiscal year beginning July 1 next, only two have been passed by both houses—the interior bill and the postoffice and treasury bill. The house has passed the tax bill. Monday it passed the Muscle Shoals bill. This completes the budget of important legislation which has been passed since congress met nearly three and a half months ago. The resolutions relating to the oil scandal require little time.

The balance of the time has been spent in going through false motions. Time consumed in framing the tax measure is responsible for most of the delay in the house. This labor appears to have been largely wasted, for the house rewrote the committee bill on the floor.

All Want to Talk.

The ways and means committee is now working over the bonus bill. It will be reported out probably this week. This will be subjected to long and rambling debate, for there is scarcely a congressman who will pass by the opportunity to make a speech on it—intended largely for the ears of his own constituents.

House leaders are trying to decide whether to force action on the resolution authorizing a flat 25 per cent cut on current income tax payments. Coolidge favors it, but democrats and insurgents are opposed because they want a trick to give the president a chance to veto the general tax bill, which he could safely do if an immediate reduction on this year's tax payments was authorized.

The senate is still debating the Norbeck farm relief bill and is about to take up the Norris constitutional amendment providing for induction of new congressmen and senators immediately after election instead of a year later as under the present constitutional provision.

CLAUDE L. ASHLEY For County Commissioner

"I am against discrimination."

In conducting my campaign for County Commissioner I have visited every nook and corner of Fulton County in an effort to talk with the people.

I have observed, and have been greatly impressed with the fact, that many thousands of dollars have been spent on beautiful stretches of concrete highways IN CERTAIN SPARSELY POPULATED SECTIONS while other sections densely populated have been left in the mud.

Recently a convict camp was moved from a section of our county long before work in that section was completed. This was planned and executed by a member of the Board who was then Chairman of the Public Works Committee, and who is now seeking re-election.

I believe the community spirit and property values will be best served by paving streets and highways in the densely populated sections, and paving them FIRST.

There are two places on the County Board to be filled by the election on March 19th. If you will cast your vote for me for one of those places I promise to treat all sections fairly and impartially.

Campaign Microrepresentation

My associates and I have conducted my campaign for re-election to the office of Sheriff upon an honorable plane. Without abuse of our opponent, we have based our appeal to the voters of this county upon our record of service in office, a record which has been and is free from criticism.

Chief Beavers have been brought face to face with the fact that the people are responding to our appeal and that we are going to be overwhelmingly re-elected. In order to stem the tide, bolster up a hopeless cause, this same committee is resorting to a campaign of misrepresentation and cheap politics.

In recent published cards, the statement is made that Sheriff Lowry's lawyers presented an injunction to the court to prevent Chief Beavers' name from being put on the ticket and that the judge refused to grant the injunction. This statement is absolutely false; and Chief Beavers and the members of his committee knew, or ought to have known, it was false when the statement was made. We invite Chief Beavers to name the lawyers who presented any such injunction; and the name of the Judge to whom it was presented and who is alleged to have refused it; so that the truth may be known as to who is re-responsible for any such proceeding, if in fact, any has ever been filed.

The voters of this county cannot be deceived by such methods.

Vote for Lowry for Sheriff and thus assure a continuance of capable and courteous service in one of the most im-

New York, March 10.—Nervous and irregular fluctuations featured the cotton market today, giving partly conflicting reports concerning the situation in Lancashire. After being at 25.50 early, May broke to 25.00, rallied to 25.25, raised off to 25.20 and later advanced to 25.50, ending at 25.50. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 10 points, active old crop positions being 24 to 25 points higher.

The market opened steady at 17 1/2 cents and sold 5 to 22 points higher during the early trading on heavily firm Liverpool cables and unfavourable weather in India. The buying interest by those firms seemed to be supplied around 100 for July and the market weakened during the forenoon under liquidation.

Early buyers seemed to be disappointed under the failure of demand to extend more importantly, and this was accounted for some of the downward selling. At one rate, May sold off to 27.45 and October to 25.12, ending net declines of about 30 to 40 points on the more active positions. There was enough covering to steady the close at the figures above, but following a report that the Lancashire labor troubles had been settled, the market rose to 25.08.

A little later, however, cotton was received suggesting that the British labor disputes had not yet ended and the market eased off again. A whole offering was much smaller, while still later cable advised that the threatened Lancashire lockout had been averted, and 100 months reached the best prices of the day in the trading. It sold at 25.12. The close was a few points off from the best under trading.

LIVINGSTON & CO.

New York, March 10.—A number of the day's developments and the market's reaction to them are summarized below.

Western will work much higher in the near future and we believe it should be accumulated on any dip. The Wheat market is quiet, but the market is not so much as it was a few days ago.

Combined average, 87.50; net gain, 0.01.

Combined average month ago, 87.79; year ago, 80.50.

New York, March 10.—Indications of continued easy money rates, even in the treasury's decision to do no long-term financing at this time, gave a good tone to the bond market today in the face of quiet trading activity. Prices held firm, with the exception of Wilson & Company 7-12 per cent bonds which were subjected to selling pressure on the statement of the president that preferred dividends were endangered. The issue last four points and other of the company's bonds were weak.

The action of French governmental and municipal obligations followed closely the movement of the franc, giving in the early dealings, and weakening as the advance of the currency was cancelled. Belgian 5 per cent bonds were weak.

Renewed selling of liberty bonds developed on the offering of the $4,000,000 treasury certificates, expected to total $500,000,000, was regarded as favorable for the general market.

Although price changes were mixed in the railroad issues, the market trend was higher with Norfolk and Western convertible 6 1/2s leading the new high market at 119 7/8 in the course of the day's trading.

DAY'S SUMMARY.

Total stock sales, 662,400 shares.

Twenty industrials averaged 97.50; net loss, 30.

High, 1924, 101.24; low, 91.88.

Twenty railroads averaged 85.43; net loss, 47.

High, 1924, 85.90; low, 82.74.

New York, March 10.—Speculators for the decline, taking advantage of the apparent public apathy regarding price movements and the general absence of effective buying power, again exerted selling pressure against today's stock and succeeded in bringing about a moderate reaction. Net losses on the active issues ranged from 1 to 2 1/2 points, but, with few exceptions, prices did not break below the lows of last week.

Considerable speculative interest was manifested in the foreign exchange market which was featured by the struggle for the control of French currency quotations between French governmental and banking interest on one hand and central and northern European speculators on the other.

After opening nearly 30 points higher at 37.35, the French franc canceled practically all of its gain. Demand sterling yielded fractionally to around 84.25 and reversals placed in most of other European rates.

Trade news, in general, was favorable. It included increase of 11,472 tons in the unfilled orders of the United States Steel corporation, which exceeded many of the earlier estimates, and announcements of French currency quotations in various sections of the country.

Bear traders apparently were bent on preventing the steel tonnage statement from bringing about a rally in the general list, concentrating their pressure on the steel shares after the statement was issued.

BOUDOIR MIRRORS OF WASHINGTON

Strange Mix Ups Occur When Secretaries Err

(Copyright, 1924, in U. S. and Canada, by Women's News Service, Inc. Released exclusively by the North American Newspaper Alliance.)

There is nothing more symbolic of Washington society than the plan of Washington streets. When Charles "Bent" laid out the city on paper, with its street straight and diagonal, with triangles and circles, it is clear he had in mind a prophetic vision of the social system that was to develop, with its rings and circles and angles, short cuts to greatness if you know the way and divergences that leave you on the rim of outer darkness if you miss the path.

When a train pushes its nose into the Union station at Washington and unfolds a new representative and a wife, the man may stand looking across at the dome of the capital, the scene of his future triumphs. His chest may heave with mighty aspirations; he may be almost ashamed to admit even to himself the height of his political ambition.

But what of his wife? She may be a gentle soul from the sunny south, a busy woman from the north, a rough gem from the west or a sophisticated society dame from an eastern metropolis. Yet think of the social ordeal that faces her.

In the small town, there is great excitement over the honor conferred on the newly-elected representative. His family and friends think he has achieved the highest position next to the presidency. His wife has visions of being a front-ranker in society and there is much preparation for the invasion of the capital.

Being one of four hundred and more, and a lesser one as precedence goes by length of service, she doesn't make a big splash. Her first job is to make her calls—hundreds of them. If she doesn't she will be left alone and lonely, in total obscurity. She is on the outer rim and must learn the way in. How to get from one social circle to another, without once stepping outside the prescribed, or if you prefer it, proscribed lines, is the national game of hop-scotch.

Two Guests Too Many. When you read about being in the "social whirl with a congressman's wife," or "society as seen by senators," it has an air of intoxication—glamour, thrill.

To entertain the visitor from the home state is one of the privileges of a representative or senator. You always try to do it well. One satisfied elector, a little flattered, can do a lot when he goes back home.

Early in the war the wife of a senator from the middle west planned a dinner for two house guests, electors from the home state. Influential electors, too, and she wanted to show them a real party.

Hoping to be impressive she wished to include as many high-ranked guests as possible and reached up to the limit. But she realized that it would be impolite to invite the French and German ambassadors to the same meal. So the invitation was sent to M. Jusseland.

The French reply expressed regret and inability to come, and so cleared the way for an invitation to the German embassy, from which came an acceptance. A lot of underlay invitations and acceptances in those tense days.

Great preparations were made. The middle western friend had decked herself out like the Queen of Sheba, and her husband was the married magnificence of correct Fifth avenue style.

The door bell rang, and the guests began to arrive. Imagine their horror, when among the first to come were M. and Madame Jusseland. Some secretary had blundered.

This meant two guests too many. The headstrong hostess not only had to secretly murder two guests, but also to keep representatives of countries then at war from stabbing each other with a salad fork or damaging the cutlery.

Did They Tell Back Home. At length, surreptitiously, the hostess hustled two trays upstairs, and the house guests—a fearful Queen of Sheba, and her spouse—for whom the party really was given, were the sacrificial victims. It was impossible to deny a seat to any of the high officials invited, and there wasn't an inch of room at the table. So there was no alternative.

What the real honor guests got of that party came up on a tray, was seen through the decorations or heard over the banisters. But they didn't tell that when they got back home. No indeed!

The average American woman has a wildly inaccurate mental picture of "the busy senator's wife." She visualizes her as breakfasting in her boudoir. She never thinks that she might be cooking breakfast. She sees the endless chain of invitations tying her to the social fly wheel which spins day and night until pleasure is her paramount duty and parties are her daily task.

By noon you seem to see the pile of letters beseeching her presence here, her wit there, her inimitable social graces elsewhere, cleared from her desk. Then flinging aside her silk negligee she leaps into her luncheon frock. She is the guest, or bait to look, elixir celebrities. She smiles and eats and listens her way through salads and ice cream, her beauty banked by out-of-season roses. (You always use flowers out of season. There are more effective but more expensive.) If you make it "beauty" is too severe a strain, her intellectual face or the regal pose of her head are alternative complements.

She is torn from lunch to be wheeled down the tree-bordered avenue home. She sheds her luncheon gown and dives into one more suited for three teas and a reception—her afternoon's program—where she must appear or the parties will fall flat.

The End of a Perfect Day—But! By 6:30 she is home again and stepping out of her afternoon frock, she slips on two shoulder straps and some beaded net and faces a blizzard. The dinner is in her honor. A little talk will be expected; after that the theater, supper and perhaps a dance.

It is quite a thrilling picture. And away out west and up north and down south, in the mountains and across the prairies, women in their simple homes read of it with a look of envy in eyes that perhaps have never seen the national capital, the out-of-season roses, the lightning change from party frocks.

But don't you believe it! There is a heaven of party in the political dough, but often the party becomes the dough and a little peace the heaven. There is a heaven of party in the political dough but often the party becomes the dough and a little peace the heaven. Few real women could long endure the insanities of that pictured existence. The job of being a wife, a mother, a housekeeper, and a human being generally is fitted in between these multifarious duties.

You who live at home, wash off the dirty that picture of a busy senator's wife or congressman's spouse. Just remember that she is a mighty busy woman if she is doing her job properly, some of the parties are a penance, and that all roses don't grow on trees.

Tomorrow: "When Bryan Appeared Brand."

Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound First. Proved Good Advice

Chicago, Illinois. — Just a few lines let you know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me. I was married going on for three years, and went to a doctor and was taking treatments twice a week for pains every month. I used to lie in bed three or four days with them and the doctor would call and inject something into my arm but me asleep so I would not feel the pains. At last she said I would have to be operated on if I wanted any children. Well, I just happened to go to see a friend with her first baby and I told her I was going to the hospital, and she said, "Don't do it! You go and get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you won't need any operation." So my husband got me a bottle right way. Now I have two lovely children. I recommend the Vegetable Compound to every woman. It has helped me and a lot of my friends. Mrs. A. MCANDLESS, 1709 South Morgan St., Chicago, Illinois.

COLON POISONING BRINGS OLD AGE

Destroys Health and Causes Premature Degeneration of all Vital Organs.

You are a wise man or woman if you understand your colon and keep it in perfect working order. Health, happiness, vigor and long life are the gifts which an active colon gives you—and a lazy colon takes away.

Your colon is the last five feet of your digestive canal. It is your sewerage system; your garbage can, so to speak. Keep it clean and you are well and happy; let it stagnate and it will distill the poisons of decay, fermentation (gas) and putrefaction into your blood, poisoning your brain and nerves so that you are restless, irritable and blue; poisoning your heart so that you are weak, listless and lazy; poisoning your lungs so that your breath is heavy or foul; poisoning your stomach and digestive organs so that you are bloated, belching and uncomfortable with gas pains; poisoning your blood so that your skin looks yellow, sallow and unhealthy; poisoning every part and organ of your body, through your blood, making you look and feel old and ugly long before your time; making your joints and your back stiff and rheumatic; your eyes dull and your brain sluggish.

By the perfect law of Nature, your colon should empty itself three times a day—within an hour after eating. Does your colon work that well? If not, it has lost its tone. What do we mean by tone? Your colon is a hollow muscle. Its walls are made up of long, muscle fibres or muscle cells which, by their contraction, empty the colon just as you would squeeze a rubber hose pipe. These muscle fibres should contract three times a day—within an hour after each meal. If they do not contract, they have lost their tone—their power to contract.

But, there is a practically perfect remedy for lazy, flabby colons. This remedy quickly restores the tone, is absolutely harmless and is decidedly pleasant to take. Clip this article and take it to your druggist. Tell him to give you a bottle of Colofone—the Colon Tonic. It will cost you one dollar if you are pleased with it, nothing if you are not pleased with it, for every druggist has been instructed to refund the price and ask no questions if his customer is not thoroughly satisfied.

But you will be delighted with Colofone for it will make you feel like a different person. Your eyes will sparkle with vitality and alertness; your brain will be clear and active; your complexion will be fresh and transparent, reflecting the purity of your blood; your digestion will be thorough and your appetite keen, for your food will taste delightful and will agree with you; you will sleep and awake refreshed; your system will be full of vim and vigor; you will feel younger, stronger, vigorous—you will enjoy the pleasure of living.

Get started on Colofone today. Nearly every person over twenty-five or thirty years of age, and many younger, need Colofone more or less. You will be simply delighted with it. Colofone cannot possibly do you any harm—it can only do you good. Try it on our guarantee. It will help you live long, well and happily.—(adv.)

HEARTS AFIRE

The Brilliant Novelist of Modern Society

INSTALLMENT 65.
An Engagement Ring.

Will Ogilvie stood in the chintz-bedded sitting room that was Janet Mercer's haven after working hours. He was a diffident young man, but today his diffidence was heightened by a little package he kept twisting in his hands.

Why didn't Janet come? She was a "sensible" creature, not given to "prinking" before mirrors, and such feminine weakness!

But Janet was in love, and that upsets the sternest characters. At this moment, she was indeed being looked at, subconsciously trying to induce some sympathy into her severe nurse's uniform.

She stared grimly at her unbecomingly, though honest countenance, with its small, twinkling, greenish eyes and the almost pig snout of a complexion in the wide expanse of her freckled face.

"What he can see in me, God knows," she murmured, under her breath.

If only he would speak right out! If only—only there could be a "definite" engagement!

Men were so strange. Take Peter Armstrong! Janet at one time could have sworn the man was head over heels on love with Prudence Paze.

But he had thrown away the gold for the dress, and definitely allowed that vain, shallow, deceitful Dale girl to enmesh him!

What fools men are! Janet's mood changed abruptly, and she stalked away from the mirror as though hating her own past weakness, and on into the sitting room where Will was waiting.

"Hello, there!" She favored him with an ungracious nod. "Can't ask you to sit down, as I'm due at the Towers."

A dull flash rose to the young man's sallow cheeks. He had come here, full of romance, and of tender thoughts. Why must Janet be so brusque? Why must their mutual moods so often jar?

"Don't let me detain you. Sorry if I've intruded!" he lifted his hat from the settee, preparatory to departing.

"Oh, I can give you a minute, I promise," Janet saw the hurt pride on his face, but for the life of her she couldn't say the soothing, tactful word.

"It's nothing at all. I—I brought you a present. Was fool enough to think it might interest you."

"What is it?" Her heart started to pound with a new swift hope. Was it—oh joy of joys!—oh! symbol!—was it a ring?

Apparently it was!

to you. You're a wonder nurse." She gave Janet a look of gratitude, and then she added:—
"You look ten years younger to-night. What's happened?"
"This," Janet held out her left hand, blushing nearly as deeply as the ruby that sparkled thereon. "I've gone and got engaged!"
But, instead of congratulating her, Mrs. Vansittart was staring speechlessly at the ring on her third finger.

"Where did you get it from?" she gasped, moving nearer.
"From my young man, Will Ogilvie," Janet displayed it proudly. "A beauty, isn't it? So quaint! Did you ever see a lovelier setting?"
Mrs. Vansittart's reply was unexpected.

"Never! I ought to know! Because that's the very ring I lost six weeks ago, and hunted high and low for! I'd know it anywhere!"
"It's mine!"

Beauty Chats

BY EDNA KENT FORBES

ANSWERED LETTERS.
Betsey S., Ellen T., John S.:—The little bags, to be used in washing the face in place of soap, are made from tulle, cheesecloth, or a mixture of the two. After a little tulle is filled with a cup of oatmeal, two table-spoonfuls of shaved castile soap, and a pinch of powdered tincture of benzoin. Into each bag put a heaping teaspoonful of the mixture. It does not omit the benzoin if you do not have enlarged pores.

Send a self-addressed stamped envelope for the eyelash formula. Albert:—Crude oil is only used when there is a tendency to dandruff and when the scalp is very dry. If your scalp is healthy it does not need any special treatment.

As you are about 70 pounds overweight it should take at least a year for you to reduce to normal. This should be through the diet, mostly, also some exercising as your doctor will prescribe for you. You can get this attention at any of the gymnasia.

Marie E. D.:—The articles you mention are all trade preparations. I do not know what they contain. Any depilatory acts as a shave, removing only the surface hair and causing the new hair to grow in coarser. As long as peroxide keeps this hair from being noticed, continue with it. When it gets too noticeable have the electric needle treatment.

Blanche:—Gum arabic water is only used on the brows for a short time to get the hairs trained so they may be brushed into a perfect line more easily. After a little training these should stay in place, and only the isolated ones will need dampening with the gum. If they get out of the line, ordinarily, the brows need nothing but brushing to keep them in place.

Mrs. P. R. W.:—Consult the doctor about the itching and very dry skin.

Blonde S. O. S.:—You can keep your light hair from turning to a high shade if you use lemon juice and bicarbonate of soda in the final rinse after shampooing. To about two quarts of water, add the juice of half a lemon and a scant half of a teaspoonful of the soda. If you send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the eyelash formula I will mail you one that is excellent. There is no cure for you to end your lashes.

Tomorrow—For An Oily Complexion.
All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in this column in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the questions.—The Editor.

unthought woman were concentrated in the rapture of the words.
A ring! For her! At last!
Oh, blessed symbol of emancipation!

Oh, crown of womanhood!
"For you," he moved awkwardly, grabbing her right hand—"Let me stick it on. It's the third finger, isn't it?"

"The—left hand, Will. Unless—her heart sank suddenly—"Unless you just mean it for a present—between friends!"

"Friends be blown!" was the incoherent though utterly satisfactory answer, as Will drew the ring over the correct finger. "There now, you're tied up to the dragon good and proper!"

The radiance of unshed tears sprang to her eyes.
"Oh, Will, you mean it? You want me? Truly?"

He drew her towards him, gazing down at her with tenderness at the homely, honest face.

"I've never wanted any other woman. And I'm no boy, my dear. I'm thirty-three!"

"And I am nearly thirty." Her head dropped against his waistcoat. "I hate girls, anyhow. I mean, the young ones. It's you I'm fond of. Janet, give me a kiss!"

A few minutes later, re-arranging her nurse's bonnet, her face irradiated with love triumphant, she breathed:—
"I'm late, Will. I must go. Walk to the bus with me."

"Of course," he strode along beside her, her arm in his, for the world to see. "And I'll call for you at the big house, when you're finished with the little girl."

"That'll be fine."
They parted.

Later, at the Towers, Mrs. Vansittart came into the nursery, to talk to Janet.

"Do you think Lucia any better?" she asked.
"And I'll call for you at the big house, when you're finished with the little girl."

"Yes, quite a bit. The doctor thinks—with careful treatment—she'll outgrow her weakness."

"The girl is so relieved."
"Lucky she's taken such a fancy to you."

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung trouble. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

Wooden Wives

—By Laura Jean Libbey—

Now, he was going away, penniless man broken in heart, health and spirit. "I had better get back to New York and attend to old Senator Rae," he concluded. She could hear the or giving orders to the servants. Senator Woodrow was to be received within the hour—and the must be closed—at once. "The was rife with the news the mid- express had been wrecked—few spring death by fire. She was not permitted to see Dan- again. Late that afternoon she shed the Rae home. As she had acted, the household was all upset. The story printed in the after- paper, copied from the Wash- morning dailies, adding the news the wrecked express and the seri- of scores of lives.

She found the old senator pacing floor like a veritable madman. The phone, Daniel's doctor had filed all he had said, and that he taking Daniel abroad. The old or was so agitated he even for- greet Marcelle with his usual—when she called attention to it performed the salute mechanically. "Your daughter fled with her old er, now she is no more," she whis- pered. "But you have me to love." She said, with consternation, he did not intend to see her in the past. At that moment old senator lapsed into such a I was alarmed lest he should away at any time. It was cer- nly a fact that his ardor had cool- considerably. His one cry was for daughter, Pauline, always for alive. She concluded that she to be lost in marrying him, on she reached the subject, he de no answer. "I had intended to ne back a week before. In response your urgent appeal, I could get away from Pauline sooner," murmured.

As she spoke, he turned his face to her, and she heard him mur- "Oh, Pauline—Pauline—dead in her youth and beauty. I do not to live—now that my child—gone from me!" she cried. "Oh, not talk like that!" she cried—sense you are so unhappy and ily, our marriage shall not be put any longer; you need me, and I concluded that the marriage of take place at once, quite as as you can secure a license and ergyman, no difficulty." He shook his head sorrowfully, no, Marcelle, that was all a mis- I see now, as never before—th should wed youth—an old man not a proper mate for a fair young ann. You must forget anything of kind that may have been said be- fore."

You do not yet understand me, Senator Rae," she panted, izing to her feet and looking at with darkening, flashing eyes, ter winning all of my young art love, do you mean that you id cast me off in that fashion? takes two people to make a har- mon, therefore, two to break one." "No man should ask a woman to rry him unless he intends to do if she consents to stand the time of being made to do so."

Marcelle—Miss Vallen—your for- yourself," he responded with dig- nity. "I hardly think you meant the part of that sentence. It does t become a young woman to in- upon marriage when it has been distasteful to the other party uly interested. I have been think- the matter all over, I say, and feel that it would not be right marry you. I may have been a e hasty in proposing marriage, e, even so, it was the fault of the id, and not the heart."

Marcelle saw the prospect loom- before her of losing the Rae for- (and she could never go back cabaret work now)—she grew ous over the obstinacy of the old "I did not mean to cause you grief any way," he went on. "The time come when you will look back this scene and say: 'The old sen- was right. I thank heaven that I not make the sacrifice of becom- his bride.' You will in time, meet ne good and true young man who e easily make up for what you may consider—a loss."

Marcelle stood before him trem- ing with blinding passion. "Nothing that you can say, changes determination," she declared. "If ue you, the law would give me the ter part of your fortune."

Senator Rae rose to his feet with- out dignity, facing her. "What!" he cried, shaking his cane fierce- ly at her. "I will make a test case this for the benefit of elderly men; I may be tempted to wed young—and open their eyes to the fact they are marrying them to spend the money. Go right ahead with breach-of-promise suit, young man. You will find I have never shrunk from battle—either in the courts, or the sen- is ready to meet a foe upon any and, and cross swords if need be. If afternoon—and goodbye!"

Marcelle instantly saw she had e too far, and that she must en- or to temporize with the irritable man. She dropped on her knees before e, seizing his hand, and covering it h kisses. "—did not mean all t," she sobbed, "the thought of r putting me away from your—made me desperate, believe I love you so much, senator, I cannot live without you. Oh, ly you have too great a heart to age your sentiments, and turn ave against a poor, friendless—who has neither father nor offer, no one to turn to to fort me in this hour of woe—be- e of some unknown change that come over you. Oh, do not turn from you, out of your life, poor Marcelle, who loves you so—I die if you do."

He looked at her in consternation, could see he was overdoing, and thought of the line, "He who hesitates is lost," and renewed her pleading to be taken back to his heart as his promised bride.

It was an unequal battle for su- premacy. Had he, after all misjudged her motive in insisting upon marry- ing him? She was so wondrously beautiful, and ever since the world began men have fallen for beautiful women—unable to say them nay when they plead with them.

"Do not grieve so, my dear child," he said distressfully, "yes, yes, I will take you back to my heart, if you in- sist you will be happy only if I do this—and I suppose the wedding can take place whenever you desire. It is as you say, Marcelle. My daughter has passed away, in all the world—I have—only—you."

She looked up at him through her tears. The matter was settled.

But to return to the midnight ex- press as it whirled out of Washing- ton.

Boyd had seen Pauline board the train. He made up his mind not to equal her by his presence on board, being by no means sure of the reception he would meet with. If she were to expose his identity—it would mean prison for him. He went on into the smoker to think out a line of procedure. He had no use for Pauline, now that he had secured her for- tune—but he could not help realizing she was far more beautiful now than she had been in the old sweetheart days. She was therefore—

He did not finish the line of thought over which he had spent quite an hour. Suddenly, "Oh, my!" through the open window at which he had been sitting, landing bruised and bleeding on the edge of an em- bankment.

As a matter of fact, finding no seat in the car she had entered, Pauline had secured a seat in the last car. She had been found, among others, pitifully crushed and scorched—but still breathing faintly.

For a moment the village night- watch—of the little town outside of which the holocaust occurred—was at a loss what to do with her, concluding she was merely done for—but her tenderness of heart would not let him leave her there. He carried the slight form to his own home a short dis- tance down the road. "A young miss, I found—dying, Mary," he whispered—"we'll put her on the bed—the end will soon come."

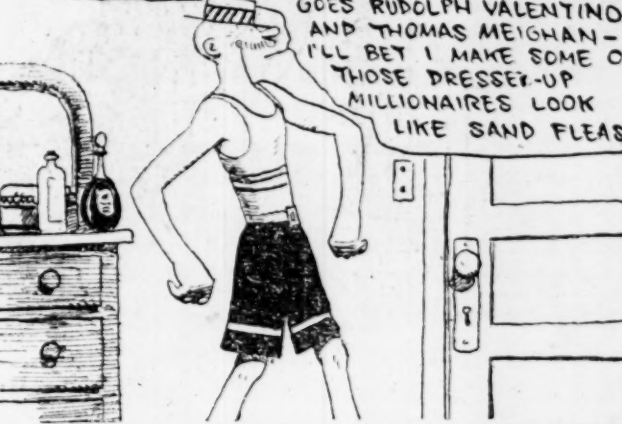

A few moments later his wife joined him on the porch, and, saying, "A young miss," she said—"she must be a married woman, but—there is no wedding ring on her poor little bruised hand."

"Let her be whom, or what she may, it is our duty to keep her be- fore."

"IT A BOY—WAIT TILL I STRUT OUT AT PAUL BEACH IN THE SEA-GOING OUTFIT— I'LL BET A LOT OF THOSE MATCH-MAKING MOTHERS WILL BE PICKING UP MY MONOGRAMMED CIGARETTE BUTTS TO FIND OUT WHO THE HANDSOME LIFESAVER IS—JOE ZILCH WIRED THEY WERE DUSTING OFF THE OCEAN AND HAVING THE BEACHES SANDED IN HONOR OF MY ARRIVAL."

WHEN CHARLEY KUBIN AND I PATROL THE BEACH ARM IN ARM I'LL BET HIS OLD CHEST WILL STICK OUT LIKE A TRAFFIC COP'S HAND— AS WE PROMENADE THE SAND I CAN HEAR THE ADMIRING MULTITUDE WHISPERING—'THERE GOES RUDOLPH VALENTINO AND THOMAS MEIGHAN— I'LL BET I MAKE SOME OF THOSE DRESSEY-UP MILLIONAIRES LOOK LIKE SAND FLEAS—"

AS I WALK ALONG THE SILVER BEACH WITH AN INDEPENDENT AIR— YOU WILL HEAR THE GIRLS DECLARE— 'HE MUST BE A MILLIONAIRE—'

neath our roof—until we make sure whether she is to live—or—die. It is fortunate your brother, Dr. Northby, is on his way to visit us, arriving at any time now. He will see to it—that she does not pass out of this world without having done everything possible to save her."

CHAPTER XVIII. "Ah! what avail, the largest gifts of heaven. When drooping health and spirits go amiss? How tasteless then, whatever can be given. Health is the vital principle of bliss."

Doctor Northby arrived shortly after. Mrs. Reed quickly informed him of the stranger beneath their roof, and her critical condition; he went at once to her bedside.

A few moments later, with a per- turbed face, he appeared in the door- way, calling his sister to the stran- ger's bedside.

They talked long and earnestly—the outcome of it was, his decision that she would be under that roof two months or more—that is, if she lived through all that was before her. "Whoever she belongs to must be dreadfully worried over her," said Mrs. Reed, looking down pityingly on the white, childish face, with the soft tumbled rings of golden hair curling about it.

Together she and the doctor worked over her; then, to their intense re- lief they saw the blue eyes open slowly. Pauline looked up in be- wilderment into the two kindly faces bending over her, and at the plain little room in which she found herself. "I will talk to her alone," whis- pered the doctor—motioning his sis- ter to leave the room. The first question he put to her was the request for her name, that her people might be notified. Tears choked her voice—all that he could make out was—Lena, or Lena—Weiss—or weiss—and the name—Lena Weiss—was the one the doctor sent out by telegraph to the railroad officials in Washington, who had the matter in charge. The night watch suggested sending her to the nearest hospital but his wife shook her head, quite a little sum of money was found pinned inside of her waist, she said. "She will pay out of that for all we do for her—besides—my brother, visit- ing here, can give her his full and undivided attention. Her case is a pitiable one, requiring unusual skill—which my brother possesses."

When asked for her home address, Pauline shook her head with a burst of tears, answering—she "had no home, no one on—earth who loved her." The apparent desolation of her situation brought tears of pity to the eyes of the honest young physician. He was greatly pained to hear her sob, over and over again, that she wanted to die—and end it all.

Very gravely and earnestly the doctor explained why she must bend every endeavor to regain her strength—and—live. She only looked up at him through blinding tears, whisper- ing—"death would be kinder than life."

Doctor Northby had intended stay- ing only a fortnight on this visit to his sister, but, as the days wore on, he became so deeply interested in his patient, he decided to remain, and re- liver illness through to the very end. Mrs. Reed and her husband were growing uneasy over the matter.

"What will become of his practice in the town he left, when he came here?" she would say. "His patients there will find another physician if he persists in remaining away. I wish I had taken your advice in the first place, John, and sent her to a hospital—it is too late now—she cannot be moved, he says."

"Your brother is in love with Lena Weiss, despite all the suspicions we have regarding her. You are blind not to have noticed it, Mary."

"Indeed I have noticed it, John," returned his wife tearfully. "We must use strategy to get her away when she is ready to go, leave that to my woman's wit—to find a way."

It was certainly due to Dr. North- by's wonderful care that Pauline lived. At the end of the tenth week a wonderful event took place. A little stranger was ushered into this world of conflicting cares and sor- rows. "A fine boy, Lena," announced the doctor, placing the infant in her arms. "Now, you see you have much to live for."

At the end of the two weeks that followed, Dr. Northby was forced to go back to his home town to look after the patients whom he had left in care of a brother physician. It was the hardest thing he had ever done—to try to say farewell to Lena Weiss. Like everyone else in the cottage, he was completely charmed with the baby.

"If Lena will consent we will adopt it," declared Mrs. Reed, adding: "John is quite as anxious as I am."

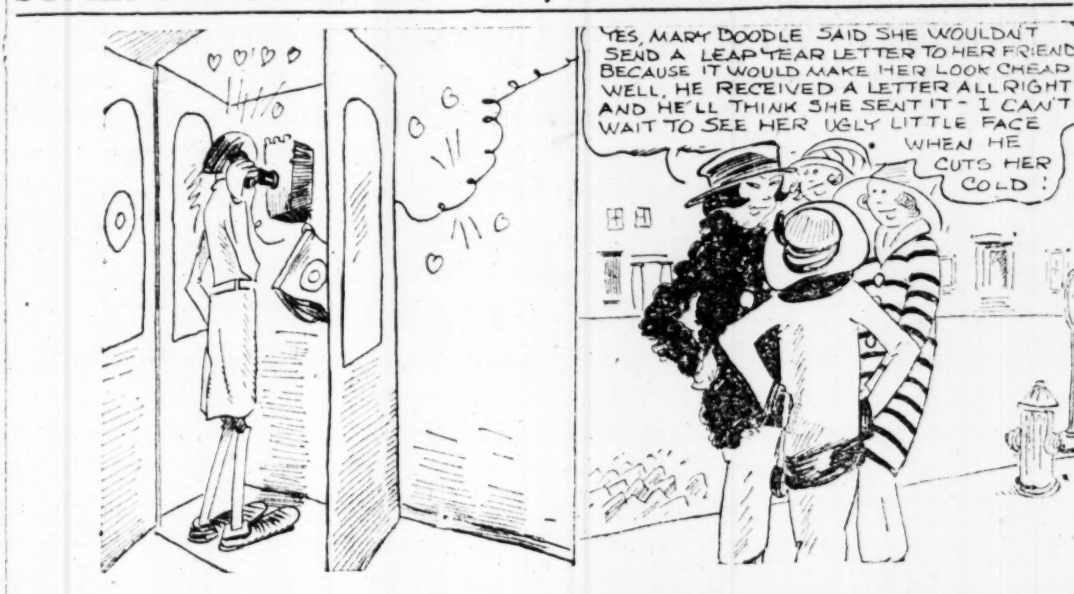

"I intend to ask the question of Lena," replied her brother, "only I shall add to the request, that I want to adopt Lena as well; that is—I shall ask her to—marry me."

"Oh, Theodore! Theodore! what can you be thinking of? You must be mad to even think of taking home a bride—and—a—baby! There would be such a scandal!"
